LODGE LAST OLD PARTY CHIEF TO DROP FROM FILE

Veteran Senior Senator Is Last Of Old Line Republican Leaders

PARTY IN CRISIS

Death of Lodge Places Dominant Role on Shoulders Of Coolidge

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 10.—Henry Cabot Lodge, senior senator from Massachusetts, Republican and leader in the senate, is dead.

The end came at the Charles Gate hospital here shortly before midnight.

Struck down last Wednesday just as he was rapidly convalescing from his second operation within a few months, the 74-year-old senator was unconscious most of the days intervening before his death.

For a brief period on Friday, he rallied with remarkable vitality and regained consciousness for a brief period during which time he spoke to his physicians and relatives at his bedside. He again relapsed into a coma, however, and his strength gradually gave away.

The passing of Senator Lodge, just as his party prepared to harvest the fruits of a sweeping victory at the polls Tuesday surrounds the question of leadership in the senate with new and unusual consideration.

A veteran of the old guard, adamant against the idea of the LaFollette insurgents on the one hand, and unable to accept some of the propositions of the Republican progressives on the other, the Massachusetts patriarch more than once had found his title as the Republican leader somewhat of a job.

Now that the power of equation of his personal influence had been removed from the party, chiefs face a task of deciding what new alignment can be effected to fill the gap and make for party solidarity.

In determining of this question, President Coolidge undoubtedly will have an opportunity to wield the dominating power of the party leadership conferred on him by Tuesday's election. If he cares to give it, his advice will be a powerful factor whether the old guard as the directing force of the senate or whether seniority is to be cast aside and some new leader listed from the ranks to a position of command.

Should no sweeping readjustment of the senate situation be attempted it is a probability that Senator Warren of Wyoming or Senator Curtis of Kansas will become floor leader. But if there is to be a new deal all around those to be considered, probably will include Wadsworth of New York, Moses of New Hampshire, Watson of Indiana and Reed of Pennsylvania.

Senator Lodge is the third Republican senator to die within recent weeks. As a result the Republican party finds itself with only 59 members, one less than a majority unless Governor Cox of Massachusetts appoints a successor to Senator Lodge before congress reassembles December 1.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 10.—Although the vacancy caused by the death of Senator Colt of Rhode Island, was filled in Tuesday's election that result from the more recent death of Senator Brandegee of Connecticut will not be filled until December 16, when a special election will be held. As this is more than two weeks after the time set for the convening of congress the senate will meet without full membership.

In the face of that situation with but 59 Republican members not all of them classed as strict administration men the clash is expected to develop difficulties, which will require expert handling if the Republicans continue in session as the dominant party in that branch of congress.

Henry Cabot Lodge had served continuously in the United States Senate since 1892, as republican leader since August, 1918, and was one of the most prominent members of his party for a generation.

Indian Country Law Upheld in Decision Of Court at St. Louis

(By the Associated Press)
ST. LOUIS, Nov. 10.—The Indian country law enacted in 1892, which provided a maximum penalty of two years in jail and a fine of $300 for carrying whiskey into an Indian reservation, is still in force despite the Volstead act, according to a decision of the United States circuit court of appeals, filed here today in this state.

Acc. P. Kennedy and his brother, John Y. Kennedy, who were sentenced at Oklahoma City July 24, 1920 to serve six months and fined $1,000 for carrying 18 quarts of whiskey onto the Osage reservation, had contended that the Volstead act provided a maximum fine of $500 and no jail sentence for first offences and automatically repealed the Indian country law.

The appeal had been pending since May 21, 1920.

NEGRO ATTACK IS CAUSE OF TROUBLE

Whites Arm to Drive Five Hundred Negro Workers From Dix Works

(By the Associated Press)

HARRODSBURG, Ky., Nov. 10.—Armed white workmen drove out approximately five hundred negroes from the construction camp of the Dix river dam, eight miles from here last night as Edward Winkley, 18, a bridegroom of a few days had been fatally shot by a negro highwayman.

Fifty national guardsmen arrived at the Dix river dam construction camp shortly after 8:30 this morning and immediately established themselves. One detachment remained on guard at the dam and another upon request of the contractors in charge of the work, was used as an escort to protect negro workmen who were being returned.

All the negroes will be paid off, it was announced, and those who wish to remain will be retained on the company's payroll.

Walter Chance and John Williams both negroes, were arrested by sheriff Walter Kennedy at the dam and hurried to Danville for safe keeping. One of them, the sheriff said, was known as "big jelly roll" and the other as "little jelly roll."

The negroes were directed to Rock Ferry near Burgin and kept there. Bonfires were kept at the dam and the chilly night to protect them from the weather and food from the river dam camp was brought by L. E. Myers and company, the contractors.

Sheriff Kennedy last night interspersed a crowd of men driving negroes before them four mile from the camp and probably prevented lynching or bloodshed. Some negroes were barefooted and others were scantily clothed.

ADA TO OBSERVE ARMISTICE DAY

Program at Convention Hall Includes Address of Senator Looney

Ada will observe the sixth anniversary of the close of the World war, Armistice Day.

Business will be abandoned by Ada merchants from 1 o'clock tomorrow afternoon and merchants and their employees will have an opportunity to attend the Armistice Day services sponsored by the Norman Howard post, American Legion at the Convention Hall.

The post had planned to dedicate Memorial Lane, a proposed tree-lined road to Rosedale cemetery, on Armistice Day, but arid weather conditions prevented this program from being carried out.

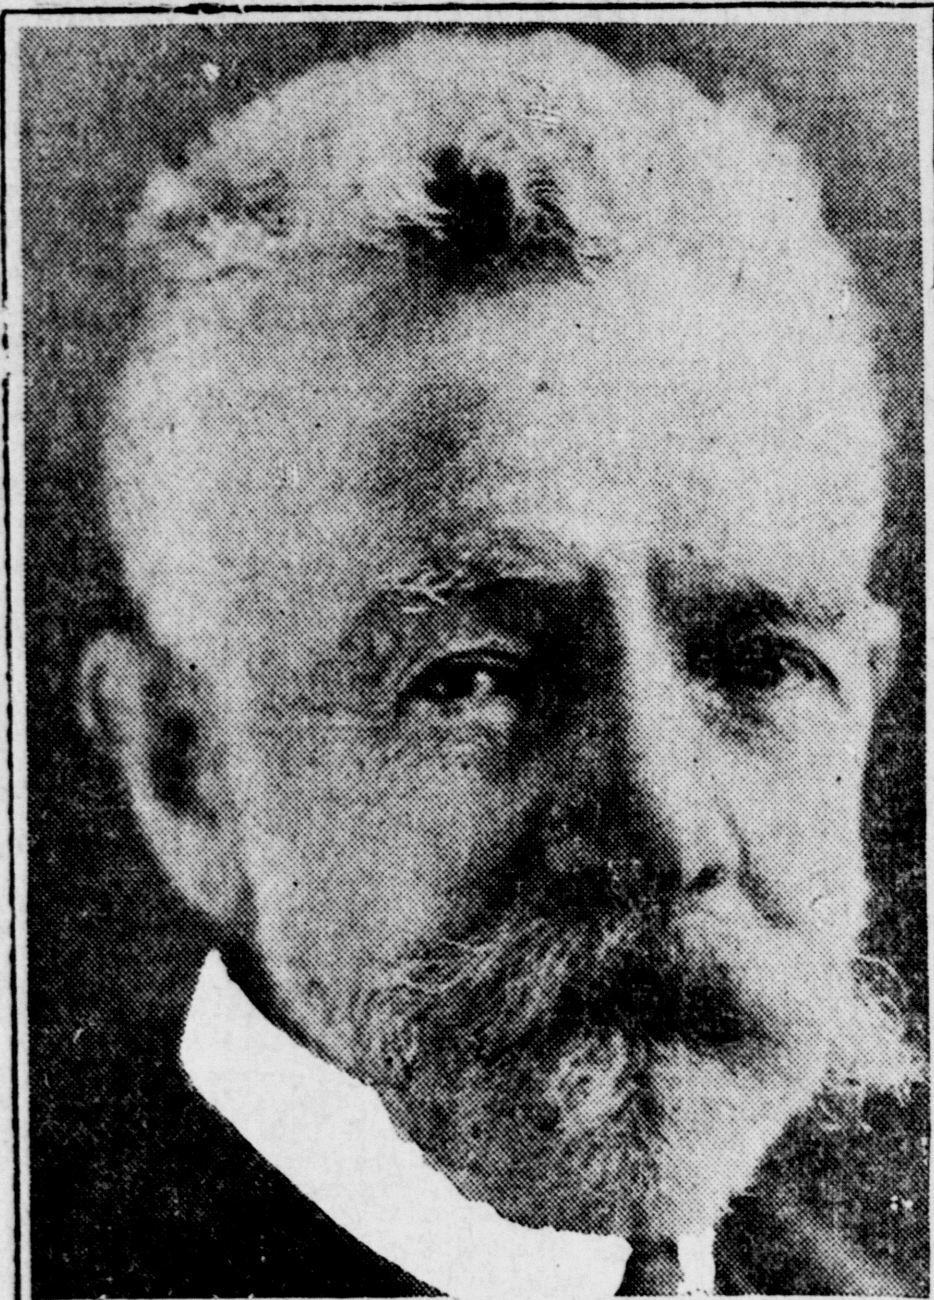

The post, however, issues a welcome to Ada citizens to attend the Armistice services, which will start promptly at 2 o'clock.

Senator Joseph Looney, a legislator, will deliver the Armistice address and Dr. Sam A. McKee will preside in the absence of Commander Robert S. Kerr.

The following program will be carried out at the service:

Invocation.—Rev. W. A. Merrill, Song, America.

STYLE PAGEANT WITH VETS SHOW

All Preparations Complete For Follies Bergere at Convention Hall

Members of the Norman Howard post are already to re-live Nov. 11, 1918, or Armistice Day of the World war.

Tomorrow night, their presentation, under the direction of Miss Mary Browne of Chicago, will bring back the hectic days of the World war and especially the date when the word was flashed over Europe that the war had ended.

While the remembrance will be revised through the Follies Bergere, a favorite musical comedy of Doughboy understanding, the presentation will deal with many old scenes of fond recollections.

Miss Browne reported today that the cast has been working diligently for the lift of the curtain and that the show tomorrow night would find members of the cast well trained for the state appearance.

In addition to the revue, a style show will be presented by the merchants of Ada. A wedding set will be shown through the courtesy of the Style Shop, which furnishes the costumes for the bride and her attendants, and M. C. Taylor company, which decks out the groom and his attendant for the occasion.

Drummond & Alderson and Shaws will also present a golfing scene with the latest in knickerbockers and other adornments for the golfer. The other clothing firms to take part in the style show are: Model, Wilson's, LaVogue, Fashion and Simpkins.

Committees of legionnaires have been making the rounds of the business district today in interest of the ticket campaign and they believe that the Convention Hall will be packed on Armistice night.

Sons of Millionaires "Start at Bottom" in Department Store Job

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 10.—Two sons of millionaire business men will make a start in the business world here today as employees of a department store. They are Charles H. Sabin Jr., son of Charles H. Sabin, New York banker and Raymond Mellon, son of Charles Mellon of Stockbridge, Massachusetts, president of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad.

They both said they had no slight idea of what the job that awaits them might be like but said they expected it would "be at the bottom" and did not know what the salary would be.

Steel Business Better.

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—Unfilled orders of United States Steel corporation on October 31, made public today totaled 3,525,270 tons, an increase of 51,490 tons compared with the end of the preceding month.

PLANS COMPLETED FOR BOOSTER TRIP

Sufficient Number Tickets Sold to Finance Booster Trip

Ada high school will move en masse to Henryetta tomorrow, when its crack football squad tangles with the undefeated conference team boasted as Henryetta's own.

Special railroad transportation arrangements will take the booster aggregation to the scene of battle. Most of the required 125 tickets have been sold to secure the reduced rate of $3.29 for the round trip to Henryetta.

The team and its 125 boosters will leave here tomorrow at 12:20 p. m. and will return here between 8:30 and 9:30, the short train being held up until 6:30 at Henryetta for the Ada aggregation.

Most of the tickets have been sold to high school students but a number have been purchased by Ada business men and mothers of high school girls who will chaperone the students to Henryetta. The Ada high school band will accompany the delegation and furnish music at timely intervals.

High school officials were enthusiastic over the response by the students and townspeople in supporting the movement of sending a delegation to Henryetta.

The Ada high school team is unbeaten in southern Oklahoma, while the Henryetta team has not lost a game in the East Oklahoma conference but fell early in the season to the Morris team.

ANOTHER BUYING FLOOD IN NEW YORK EXCHANGE

(By the Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—Another flood of buying orders poured into today's stock market, carrying more than a score of stocks to a new high peak for the year. In the first 15 minutes trading on the total sale of 150 shares entailed a gain of from a fraction of a point to four points.

Rail shares continued to lead the advance. The new heights in this sale included, Southern Pacific, Rock Island common, East Pennsylvania, Louisville and Nashville and Chicago and Eastern Illinois preferred. They were closely pressed by oil stocks, large blocks of which changed hands at steady rising prices. The general industry list also pointed upward, American banking jumping four points to new 1924 maximum at 145 while consolidated Gas, United Drug, United States Cast Iron Pipe and several others bettered previous top prices.

Several of the larger commission houses reported the greatest week-end buying in recent years.

RED CROSS FUND GOAL OF GROUPS OF ADA WORKERS

No Set Amount Adopted By Committees; Want Full Charity Chest

ONE-DAY DRIVE

Committees to Assemble at Convention Hall Tomorrow Morning

The annual Pontotoc County Red Cross roll call will be officially launched here tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock and will be carried to a whirlwind close within a few hours after the first committee leaves the Convention Hall.

A number of groups will canvass the city and they have been subdivided to such an extent that a thorough canvass can be made in the forenoon.

Every section of the city will be thoroughly canvassed by committees appointed to that district. Women will play a prominent part in the drive this year. A number of committees of women have been appointed to canvass residence districts, while the men were named to work in the business section.

The committees have been chosen in most instances in such a manner that members will canvass familiar haunts. Business men will work in the sections in which their businesses are located while women committees will include in its membership, women who live in that section of the city.

Supplies and all necessary equipment for the drive will be furnished at the Convention Hall by Judson Treadwell and Robert Bradley, who are in charge of the drive.

While those in charge of the roll call this year have not set a goal for the Red Cross contributions, they intend to stretch the amount to the limit in view of the valuable work done by the Ada chapter last year. The Red Cross received pledges of more than $4000 last year but those in charge expect to increase the amount.

Red River Suits Up For Hearing Before Officials

(By the Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—Hearing on application of 100 corporations and individuals for permits and leases involving millions of dollars on the southern half of Red river oil field in Oklahoma opened today before Secretary Work, and Solicitor John H. Edwards of the interior department. After a brief session the hearing adjourned until Wednesday.

Argument will begin December 1, concerning the heart of the area, where six wells are situated. The permits and leases in dispute originally were awarded by the states of Oklahoma and Texas. The United States government however, later declared the territory public land and took possession, and had been operating it since, under a receivership.

PRIMARY SYSTEM CHANGE IS SEEN

Preferential Primary Would Be Solution to Ills in State, McKeown Thinks

A preferential primary is the solution of the ills of the Democratic party in Oklahoma, according to Tom D. McKeown, congressman from this district, who was recently re-elected with one of the largest majorities ever given a congressman in Oklahoma.

"The recent experience in having a man nominated on the Democratic ticket with less than one-third of the votes in the primary and then having that nominee so overwhelmingly repudiated at the polls is enough to cause the leaders in the party to do something and do it without delay. Such a thing as a Democratic state having two Republican senators would be comical were it not so serious and the results so disastrous," Congressman McKeown thinks.

"The primary ballot should provide space at the left and at the right of each candidate's name. Each voter should vote his first choice as at present. For the second choice he should stamp to the right of the name. If the candidate does not receive a majority of the first choice votes, then the votes for first and second choice should be added together, and the one having the most of first and second choice combined will be the nominee. It is not necessary to have more than the second choice, for this means two primaries, and we do not need three."

"I believe the next legislature will pass a law similar to the one suggested. It is the only way out of a condition the party is now in."

"Another good effect it would have would be to do away with much of the abuse and falsification now prevalent. A candidate would desire the good will and support as second choice of those who are strong friends of another candidate. Thus it would be necessary for him to make friends with those who are against him for first choice."

Two Gospel Teams Work Sunday With County Audiences

Lawrence and Fitzhugh communities were visited last night by two gospel teams sponsored by the Men's Brotherhood class of the Presbyterian church. One group, consisting of Hugh Norris, Claude McMillan, H. A. Stevenson and Mesdames M. B. Molloy and J. F. Green went to Lawrence. A large audience greeted them and enjoyed the religious service conducted by Mr. Stevenson and the vocal solos by Mrs. Green.

The group going to Fitzhugh consisted of Misses Violet Moore, and Lady Percy Shaw and W. A. Hill, Longley Fentem and Harry W. Miller. The vocal solos, by Mr. Hill Fentem and the violin music by Miss Shaw were much appreciated by the large audience. A religious service was conducted by Mr. Miller.

DABNEY CLAIMS TILGHMAN DEATH ORDINARY CRIME

State Maintains Tilghman Killing Not in Line of Official Duty

SHERIFF RESTRAINED

Doyle Maintains He Is Powerless to Serve State Warrant

(By the Associated Press)

WEWOKA, Nov. 10.—A temporary restraining order enjoining J. A. Doyle, Seminole county sheriff, from arresting Wylie Lynn, federal prohibition agent, who is charged with killing William Tilghman, veteran peace officer, was issued today by United States District Judge F. E. Kennamer in Tulsa, according to a telegram received by Doyle.

The act was seen by state officers as the federal government's first move in a controversy over whether the government of state shall have jurisdiction over the trial of Lynn.

A hearing to determine whether the order be made permanent will be held tomorrow at Chickasha, according to a telegram received by Doyle.

Doyle said he was powerless to act further on the service of the state warrant he holds for Lynn's arrest and declared the next move on the part of the state must come from George Short, attorney general.

Lynn, released by federal authorities on a $10,000 bond following his arraignment before United States Commissioner Park Crutcher, was to have surrendered to Doyle yesterday on the state murder charge, according to arrangements made over telephone Saturday night between Doyle and Lynn who was in Tulsa conferring with his attorney. He was to have been given a preliminary hearing on the state charge in Seminole county before J. H. Cobb, justice of the peace.

United States authorities called attention to an act passed by congress in 1918 which authorized transferred to federal court all charges against a revenue officer incurred in conduct of their duty. The state of Oklahoma maintains Lynn was not performing his official duty when he killed Tilghman and that the case is an ordinary murder and has no place in the federal court.

The state will oppose federal interference and will carry the case to the United States supreme court if necessary, according to Edwin Daveney, assistant state attorney general.

"The state of Oklahoma will appeal the Lynn restraining order if necessary," Dabney declared. "The high handed super-authority in handling a common murder case growing out of an oil-field killing will not be upheld by the supreme court of the United States. I think I can show Judge Kennamer that today's proceedings are illegal."

BUSINESS WORRIES ARE FORGOTTEN BY KIWANIS

Business worries were forgotten by Kiwanians at their regular meeting today at the Episcopal parish house. They feasted and heard an entertainment program throughout the hour.

Readings by Misses Lady Percy Shaw and Edna Gregg of the high school proved highly entertaining for the Kiwanians.

Hugh Norris of the College, Prof. Garrett of the high school and V. L. Hobson were appointed on the general committee to arrange for the presentation of the Kiwanis play, "Kathleen" here December 5. Contracts have been signed for the show and a director will be here next week to start rehearsals for the show.

A number of prospective members were mentioned to the club at noon today and membership invitations will be extended to them. The attendance prize of last week, a savings bank and a $1 account, donated by the Security National bank was presented to L. A. Braly, J. A. Ryndak won the attendance prize today, which will be presented at the next meeting.

Visitors of the club today were: Earl Gill of St. Joseph, Paul B. Stone of Oklahoma, Roy Tidwell, Misses Lady Percy Shaw and Edna Gregg, J. L. Hughes, a new member, was presented.

SCHOOL NOTES

Willard School Notes

The school is moving along nicely at the present time, with an increase in enrollment of 12 pupils in the last month.

In a baseball spelling contest put on by the fourth grade last Friday by teams known as the Texas and the Oklahoma teams of that grade resulted in a score of 6 to 4 in favor of the Texas team. Much interest and enthusiasm was shown among the pupils and several of the pupils proved to be excellent spellers for the fourth grade.

Lucian Harris was absent from school one-half day on account of having cut his foot on a piece of tin during a play period.

One of the teachers, Mrs. Mathis, has been out of school most of the past week on account of illness. We are glad to know that she is getting along fine and will back on duty by next Monday.

Miss Ruth Sandel has been absent all of the past week on account of sickness. We hope to have her back in school soon, for Ruth is not only a good pupil but she is a good member of the basketball team.

To improve the discipline in the lines, the school will give the room that has the best lines from now until Christmas a ball of some kind to play with.

A good record was made by the following pupils in reading and spelling last week: Norma Gene Moore, Clara Lea Bradley, Glen Watson, Earl Butt, Tommie Wallace Bailey, Nadine Strickland and Tom Cook all made 100 each day during the week.

We are glad to have Sara Hale back in school again. Sarah was absent two days last week on account of illness.

Three games of ball were played by our pupils last week, two by the girls and one by the boys. The boys played a game of football with the boys of the Irving school and the game ended 0 to 0. The game was enjoyed very much by both teams and visitors.

The first team of the Willard played the first team of the Irving school and the score was 11 to 6 in favor of Willard.

The second team of the Willard school played Washington girls and met a bad defeat, the score was 22 to 2 in Washington's favor.

The P. T. A. meeting at the school last Friday afternoon proved to be the best meeting of the association this year. The orchestra played one number, the Glee Club gave two numbers, and then Prof. John Zimmerman of the Teachers College gave an excellent talk on the subject "Telling is not Teaching." Mr. Bolton talked to the mothers for a few minutes along the lines of cooperation between patrons and teachers, which was enjoyed very much by those present.

On account of sickness in the family, Mrs. Haney, who was elected president, could not be present and asked that another member be elected president to fill her place so the association proceeded to elect a new president, which was easily and quickly done. Mrs. Mears was elected unanimously.

The association has two sand tables made for the school, one is for the First Grade and the other one is for the Second Grade.

The association gave five dollars to the room that has the most mothers that had children in attendance in that room. The Fourth grade room was successful at this meeting.

The wind that came on last Tuesday night broke out some windows and blew down one of our basketball goals.

We still have several pupils on the honor roll, but we are having several who are dropping out.—Committee.

Washington School.

The report for the second month of school shows 191 with perfect attendance records for the month. In this feature the girls had decidedly the better of it, they having 105 who were either absent not tardy, while the boys had 86. Attendance honors by classes goes easily to grade 5B with 11 boys and 15 girls who have perfect records.

The report also shows 11 gained by first enrollment and 6 gained by transfer from other buildings. Grade 2B leads in new enrollment with 4.

Total attendance record goes to Mrs. Timberlake's section of grade 1B. With an enrollment of 39, this class had an average daily attendance of 38.5 plus. This is believed to be a record attendance for a beginners' class of that size. The 4th grade, under Mrs. Garrett, comes next in attendance with a daily average of 37.

The orchestra has secured the services of Miss Cain as instructor of violin.

The girls' chorus has been at work this week on features for the P. T. A. meeting Friday.

Geography and history classes lost no time in putting the new globes and maps to their proper use. Interest in these subjects is growing rapidly.

The girls' basketball team came off decidedly victorious in a practice game Wednesday afternoon.

The folks in Grade 2A are going at this business of spelling with vigor. A check made Friday shows that little Miss Helen Stenfield, Helen Smith, and Louvaine Johnson did not miss a single word during the entire week.

Grade 3B is also having an interesting race for leadership in spelling. This week shows the following tied at perfect all: William Core, Mildred Covey, Sherman Burton, Bill Derrick, Jimmy Petty.

Although Mrs. Byrd was forced by illness to be away from her duties with grade 5B one day last week, the class organization is effective enough that the work went right on under Mrs. Smith, who substituted for Mrs. Byrd. In addition to the honors won by this class last month

Football Runs in Kipke Family

By NORMAN E. BROWN

Football seems to run in families. And the Kipke family of Lansing, Mich., adds its list of stars to those illustrious groups.

Harry is probably the outstanding star of the three boys who have made Mrs. Minnie Kipke a proud mother these fall days. Harry it was who led and starred with the Michigan University eleven which battled its way to a tie for the Big Ten title last fall. He was picked by Walter Camp for the All-American eleven too.

Harry is now coaching at Missouri.

His brother, Ray, however, is the star of the Michigan Aggie grid team and a younger brother, Herbert, is starring with his high school team at home.

Mrs. Kipke, a widow, is wrapped up in her sons—she has three others besides the football trio. While Harry was starring with the Wolverines squad Mrs. Kipke found they seem to have started this month right by having 19 perfect in spelling for the week and showing a decided improvement in penmanship over previous weeks. Girls and boys of the class were pitted against each other in a spelling match Friday, which threatened to end in a draw, so long did each side hold out. The girls finally won, however, with three up after the boys had all been "spelled down."

John Wauson withdrew from school Friday, going to Vancouver.

Wallace Rogers is a new edition to the 8th grade, coming from Dist. 52, New York City.

Grade 5A gets honors for Sunday school attendance, having led all other classes since the record was started. Last Sunday's attendance from this class was 29.

7B arithmetic class spent an especially interesting week on business forms, statements, and calculations involved in business transactions.

Visitors to the 4th grade room this week were first impressed by the artistic mottoes displayed by the class in drawing. If the visit happened to be in school hours the application of the mottoes was very much in evidence, for they all had to do with work.

The P. T. A. held an interesting session Friday afternoon. Details of the meeting will, it is understood, be given elsewhere in this issue of the paper.

In addition to the increased interest in arithmetic the 7th grade found time during the week to make a substantial boost in standing in other work, over that of previous weeks. Records show the following with perfect spelling for the week:

Josephine Bledsoe, Hazel Byrd, Vera Derrick, Herman Dorsey, Josephine Goddard, Francis Hearne, Samuel B. Howard, Leffler Hunt, Leota Laseman, Minnie Little, Maurine Robinson, Lorena Williams, Wanda Winn Mary Emma Witcher, Lois Yates, Charles Duke, Ruby Fowler, Lorena Kroth, J. H. McElreath Elmer Loman.

Surgical Operation Proves Successful for Prize Cow

(By the Associated Press)

STILLWATER, Okla., Nov. 10.—By a surgical operation not often undertaken and rarely successful, veterinarians have saved the life of a $3,000 cow, held to be one of the 75 best cows in North America, at the Oklahoma A. and M. college. A nail which penetrated the front wall of the forward stomach and was prodding the animal's heart was removed by a veterinarian.

An hour after the operation the cow produced 13 pounds of milk, and she now is rapidly recovering the 40 pounds of weight she lost during her brief but nearly fatal illness. Four days after the cow became sick, veterinarians decided her case was so acute an immediate operation was necessary. In those four days the animal fainted five times.

The cow is Rosa Sagis Joanna, a Holstein, state record milk producing cow and record butter producer in 23 states. Three years ago the college purchased her for $2,700 and she is listed in the stock inventory at $3,000 although college authorities say that price would not be considered for her. She is mother of a calf which sold for $1,500 and another now valued at $1,000.

Besides the large nail, Dr. Frank Knotts, Stillwater veterinarian, who assisted Drs. H. W. Orr and E. E. Harnden of the college faculty, in the operation, removed from the cow's stomach another shorter nail, which also had penetrated the wall of the stomach, three six-penny nails, a wire three inches long, two small rocks and a bolt nut.

Watching the operation was a small gallery of students of agriculture, dairying and veterinary medicine, President Bradford Knapp Dean C. T. Dowell of the school of agriculture and Dean C. H. McElroy of the school of veterinary medicine.

ARMISTICE DAY SERMON AT CHRISTIAN CHURCH

The seating capacity of the First Christian church was taxed to its utmost at both the morning and evening services yesterday.

Dr. Wallace at the morning service following the growing custom of ministers all over the United States on the Sunday preceding Armistice Day, preached an eloquent and patriotic sermon using as his subject "Shall We Have Another War?" He showed that the churches of Christ throughout America believe in a warless world and are dedicated to its achievement, that all nations should associate themselves permanently for world peace, that they believe in sweeping reductions of armaments by all nations and that nations no less than individuals are subject to God's immutable moral laws.

At the evening service, his subject was "Heartfelt Religion." He maintained that the heart spoken of in the Scriptures, thinks, reasons, understands, feels, meditates, worships and loves. He explained that the heart in conversion was changed as stated by Paul in Romans 12:1-2.

The revival services at the church will continue throughout this week. Bro. W. A. Merrill pastor of the First Christian church at Shawnee, who delivered a series of splendid sermons last week will be back and bring the message each evening. You are cordially invited to attend all the services at this church.

Oil News

Floyd O. Howarth is cleaning out the hole in section 14-4-7, getting ready to test out the sand encountered at 752 feet.

The sand when barely touched showed a heavy flow of gas and some oil. In correcting trouble with the 15-inch casing, casing set in in the bottom of the hole. The casing yet lacks several feet of being on the bottom.

This well is only a few miles west of Steedman, and there is interest on this account. The Steedman sand, however, carries little or no gas, and the presence of gas in the Howarth well makes it look as though it might be a big well.

Several people from Ada were out at the well Sunday, and others were down from Francis and Sasakwa. Mr. Howarth himself was on the ground also.

TRUE LOVE NEVER DID RUN SMOOTH

The course of true love ran anything but smoothly in the old pioneer days, judging from "The Covered Wagon," a James Cruze production for Paramount which comes to the McSwain theatre next Wednesday for a two days run.

Will Banion, hero of the story, is under a cloud because Sam Woodhull, who was with him in the Army during the war with Mexico, accuses him to the wagon train people of theft.

The great wagon train of 1848 sets out for Oregon. Molly Wingate, the heroine, is loved by both Woodhull and Banion. She favors Banion but will not wed a man under a cloud. But during the journey, Banion saves her life several times and finally is enabled to prove his innocence.

The trip is fraught with great peril. The Indian attacks, the fording of rivers and prairie fires, add to the terrors of the great overland journey. But there is fun as well—the great buffalo hunt supplies sport and food.

These marvelous scenes are all contained in this epic drama of the time when the west was still unconquered.

Lois Wilson, J. Warren Kerrigan, Alan Hale, Earnest Torrence, Tully Marshall, Charles Ogle, etc., are in the cast.

Every Student
Athletic Goal
In Kansas Plan

(By the Associated Press)

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 6.—Athletic departments of the state and the denominational colleges and universities of Kansas have arranged and prepared courses this year to include some branch of sport or athletic activity for every student.

The survey indicates that colleges are realizing the need of increased physical education and are inaugurating courses wherein the physical defects or weaknesses of each student is studied and proper measures taken to correct.

"We believe that every man and woman in the University is a champion at some game," said the athletic director at Kansas University. "The problem for us is to help them find their game." This seems to be the consensus of opinion of all directors.

The new courses, athletic directors assert, are appealing to a great many more students, because the likes and dislikes of each one is investigated and their physical efficiency is determined.

The new arrangements in the departments of physical education have resulted in the necessity of enlarging the athletic facilities to take care of the increased enrollment in physical training courses. Kansas University has enlarged its gymnasium and has provided additional equipment to take care of the new course opened this term.

Kansas State Agricultural College has more than 2000 men and women engaged in some form of athletics every semester.

Southwestern College strives to have every student engaged in some form of athletic activity. Baker University reports that a total of 220 men are enrolled in physical education courses.

College athletic directors agree in the belief that there is some kind of sport which will appeal to all and they are endeavoring to get the individual and his particular kind of sport together.

MISSOURI WOULD SHOW
INTERESTS IN SPORTS

(By the Associated Press)

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 5.—Many Missouri colleges and universities are increasing their efforts to bring the largest number of students possible into some recreative and athletic activity.

A survey of the University of Missouri and other state colleges shows that nearly all of them require their students, both men and women, during their freshmen and sophomore years to complete a specified amount of work in the athletic department. Credits are given in this work. The program now in vogue in Missouri colleges is to find the individual is particularly interested in along that line, train the individual along that line.

It is the general opinion among athletic directors in this state that every individual is attracted by some particular athletic development. Each student is examined when he enters college, his physical defects noted, and members taken to correct them in supervised physical education.

"It is hard to make an exact estimate, but we feel that sixty percent of the students are doing something regularly in the recreative way," said C. L. Brewer, director of athletics at the University of Missouri.

The military schools in Missouri also are endeavoring to interest every student in some phase of athletics. The cadet at Wentworth Academy is given the privilege of choosing the sport in which he is most interested.

and republican floor leader, he led the contest with former President Wilson in the fight against ratification. He was the author of the "Lodge reservations" and was credited with a large part in molding the policy of the Harding administration against American entrance into the League.

He was born in leisure, but always worked. A principle laid down by him in early life was: "The first thing from a man of leisure to do, if he really wishes to count in his day and generation, is to avoid being an amateur." Although he apparently had no intention of practicing law, he worked hard and won a degree in that branch at Harvard, and then worked on a thesis on Anglo-Saxon land laws, which won him a Ph.D. in the three years that followed he was recognized as an authoritative historian. Among the score of books he wrote were biographies of Washington, Hamilton and Webster.

It was his theory that every man should "give of his leisure, more or less, to politics; for it is simply good citizenship for him to do so," and along with the historical researches he became interested in contemporary politics. His public career began with election to the Massachusetts House of Representatives in 1879.

He was unsuccessful in his first attempt to go to Washington as a national legislator. In 1882 he was a candidate for the Republican nomination for Congressman and the contest was so close that 130 ballots were required to decide the nomination of his opponent by the Congressional convention. In 1886, however, he was nominated and elected to the national House of Representatives, where he served six years before his election to the Senate.

His oratory was distinguished by his practice of sketching in an historical background and his facility in quoting apt historical incidents. In an interview in 1922 summing up his career he said: "I have nothing to say about my opponents, for I have never made personal or abusive attacks on anyone opposed to me. It has always seemed to me that a man in public life stood more strongly if he stood on his own merits rather than on someone else's defects. I think I may say that I have done a great deal of difficult and responsible public work. On that public work and on that record I am content to stand."

Was Enthusiastic Republican

Mr. Lodge from the outset of his public career was an enthusiastic republican and an intense partisan. He was honored often by his party. An ambition to be chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, on which he served for many years, was realized when the republicans regained control of the Senate in 1919. He then also was chosen majority leader, having served the republican minority previously as floor leader.

Twice Senator Lodge was temporary and permanent chairman of republican national conventions, at Philadelphia in 1900 and at Chicago in 1920. Former President Roosevelt, a lifelong friend, urged Mr. Lodge's nomination for the republican presidential candidacy in 1912 when Mr. Roosevelt declined the Progressive party's nomination. As chairman of the 1920 republican convention, Senator Lodge was prominent in conferences which led to President Harding's nomination.

In addition to conflicts with partisan opponents, Senator Lodge had several inter-party contests.

He was severely criticized by independently inclined members of his own party in 1884, when, on his return from the Republican National Convention at which he had joined with other members of the Massachusetts delegation in strenuously opposing the nomination of James G. Blaine for president, he announced that he would give his support to Blaine in his campaign for election.

As a member of the committee on resolutions at the Republican National Convention in 1896, he wrote the words which committed the party to international bimetalism. Immediately after this convention, Senator William E. Chandler of New Hampshire announced that he would give $100 to whoever could prove that he was the author of this plank. It was not until 1902 that the proof was disclosed, when Senator Foraker, who had been chairman of the resolutions committee, found the original draft of the platform with the interlined amendment to the bimetalism plank consisting of the words "which we pledge ourselves to promote," written on a telegraph blank in Mr. Lodge's hand writing. Senator Chandler thereupon arranged a dinner at which he presented Mr. Lodge with a silver cigar box valued at $100.

Mr. Lodge's seat in the Senate was not seriously threatened until the campaign of 1910, when rival candidates presented themselves for the republican nomination and waged a bitter contest against him. In that campaign he was charged with having built up a powerful machine to control party affairs in Massachusetts. He secured the nomination, however, and was re-elected by a margin of six votes in the Massachusetts legislature. He was re-elected in 1916 for a term expiring in 1923.

Had Hard Race in 1922

Seeking re-election in 1922 he was faced with determined opposition within and without his party. In the primary campaign, Joseph Walker, a former Speaker of the Massachusetts house of representatives and a former Progressive, was a candidate for the republican nomination for Senator. Mr. Walker attacked Senator Lodge as being reactionary and as not properly representing his party, but when the primary votes were counted it was found that the Senator was an easy winner. To oppose him in the election the Democrats nominated William A. Gaston, Boston lawyer and banker, who made a vigorous campaign. Mr. Walker announced his support of Gaston and certain other Republicans came out for the prohibition candidate, John A. Nicholls. The vote ran close throughout the state and although Senator Lodge's re-election was assured by the returns, it was not until after a recount of the ballots, demanded by both parties, that his plurality over Gaston was fixed at 7336.

Soon after leaving college Mr. Lodge formed a close friendship with Theodore Roosevelt. This was fostered by their joint interest in history and politics, and during Mr. Roosevelt's administration as president, Senator Lodge was invariably a factor in conferences at the White House.

During the Harding administration he also was a prominent figure in party councils and politics.

The establishment of international copyright, the regulation of immigration, the reform of the consular service, and numerous other items of notable legislation were largely credited to him. As a member of the foreign relations committee it fell to him to take charge in the Senate of the second Hay-Pauncefote treaty, and of the treaty establishing the Alaskan tribunal—a tribunal of which he became a member. For years he was a member of the Senate finance and naval committees, active in framing tariff, taxation and naval as well as international policies. The navy was his special interest.

Travelled Often Abroad

Mr. Lodge travelled often abroad and had the friendship of many prominent European statesmen. He spoke French fluently and was a student of its art and literature, his library being filled with books of Napoleon and French volumes. He also had one of the largest collections of Roosevelt letters.

Senator Lodge's father, John Elbertson Lodge, was engaged in trade with China and owned many ships. The senator once remarked: "I never went to sea but I knew every part of a ship." His great grandfather, George Cabot, was a Senator from Massachusetts from 1791 to 1796 and was appointed by President Adams as secretary of the navy when that department was created, but declined the appointment.

Senator Lodge made his home in a picturesque mansion on the cliffs of Nahant jutting out into Massachusetts Bay. There as a boy he became an expert swimmer and master of a sail boat with a retired fisherman as instructor and companion. During his summer vacations usually at his Nahant home and, as he was an ardent horseman was often seen galloping along the beaches and through the villages. In his later years he found horseback riding too strenuous and got most of his exercise in walking, although he continued to enjoy an occasional swim in the ocean. He was passionately fond of the sea, which he once said "conveys most nearly the idea of infinite space."

For many years Senator Lodge served as moderator at the Nahant town meetings and in August, 1913, he made a special trip from Washington to preside at a special town meeting called to consider the question of building a new schoolhouse. A fellow townsman wrote: "His attitude in town meetings is liked by the townspeople. His opinions are not always approved, but he is interested in all details, however small, and is considerate of other's opinions."

In September, 1922, the Nahant townspeople, irrespective of party, tendered him a reception and presented him with a silver plate inscribed as "a token of affection and esteem."

Mr. Lodge's wife, who was Anna Cabot Mills, daughter of Rear Admiral Charles H. Davis of the United States navy, died in 1915. He had two sons, George Cabot Lodge, who died soon after his graduation from Harvard, and John E. Lodge, a Boston lawyer; and one daughter, Mrs. Augustus P. Gardner, widow of the late Congressman Gardner of Massachusetts.

Mrs. E. S. Waggoner and daughter, Mary, returned from Bartlesville, Oklahoma, this morning.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

BUT THOU, WHEN THOU PRAYEST, enter into thy closet, and when thou hast shut thy door, pray to thy Father which is in secret; and thy Father which seeth in secret shall reward thee openly. For your Father knoweth what things ye have need of, before ye ask Him.—Matt. 6:6, 8.

From all accounts La Follette is one of the most surprised men in the country as a result of the election. He had drawn together all the discontented elements of the nations from reds of the deepest dye to the pale pinks and also a few who sincerely believed in him and his cause, but all this motley host was too small to create a party of respectable proportions. The country was in no mood for a third party movement at this time. La Follette holds Wisconsin in a grip that Tammany would envy but Senator Wheeler of Montana, having helped to defeat the Democratic party, the party to which he owes his present condition, will get the gate in short order when his term expires.

And now we are told that the budget makers think the expenses of the national government can be cut another half-billion dollars next year. No doubt they could be, but whoever heard of a Republican congress that could be bound by a recommendation of economy?

The Chamber of Commerce to which every citizen of Ada who possibly can do so should join. It is impossible for a town to get above its present level without an organization of this kind to look after matters that are otherwise everybody's business and nobody's business. The Ada organization has given a good account of itself and it is a matter of self interest for the boosters of Ada to get in and push it to the limit. There are a number of people here who have considerable property interests who benefit as much as members through the growth of the city but who in times past have been content to ride the other fellows who were trying to make Ada a larger and better town. Now is a good time for these to drop in and carry their part of the load.

William Jennings Bryan invites the Progressive elements of the nation to come into the fold of the Democratic party, assuring them that in that sort of union lies the only hope for progressive ideas of government and beneficial legislation. However, it is to be hoped that only the real progressives will come in and that the radicals and soreheads who are always nursing a grievance will stay in a party of their own. The Democratic party does not need this element. It is a party of progress but not of radicalism.

Many families are moving to Ada to take advantage of the city schools and the college. There are other things that make a city quicker than good schools, but there is nothing that does more to keep a city growing than excellent educational advantages for the growing boy or girl. We welcome to the city these fathers and mothers who are preparing their children for good citizens.

New Mexico went for Coolidge by a small margin but elected a Democratic senator to replace a Republican, elected another Democrat governor and defeated the Republican judge who tried to send Carl Magee, newspaper man, to jail because he dared to criticize his court through his paper. It could have been worse.

The next legislature of Oklahoma will include five women in its membership. Women have not been backward about running for office since they were granted the franchise. The United States senate is the only place short of the presidency to which a woman has not been elected and the next two years may see one break in there also.

This is the time of the year when the outdoors are most pleasing. Nature has dabbed the canvass with the most lavish array of colors. Pecans and persimmons and other wild fruit are tempting to the taste. While game is not prolific, there is enough to keep up the interest of the hunters. With fair roads, the drivers of cars can get the maximum of pleasure from a spin under the Indian summer sun.

From all accounts the turkey crop in Pontotoc county is fairly good and is beginning to move. Thanksgiving is not far away and that will mean a general thinning of the ranks of these kings of the barn yard. The turkey is a native of America and the best fowl of any sort produced in the Old World cannot hold a candle to him.

Before the election cartoonists pictured Theodore Roosevelt, Jr. as trying to walk in his father's footsteps. He succeeded all right until he ran for governor of New York and there he needed longer legs and bigger boots. He could not make the final jump.

There is yet considerable cotton in the fields of Pontotoc county. The production for the county apparently will be close to 22,000 bales. This means there is being put into circulation between two and a half and three million dollars.

PINE LOVES HIS SIMPLE HOME LIFE

Victory Over Walton Another
"From the Farm" Entrant
Into Politics

OKMULGEE.—Truly "A Son of the Middle Border", climbing up through the hardest of labor and study, from a farm boy and country school teacher in western Illinois to the ranks of the oil millionaires in eastern Oklahoma, through all the years and to this day living a simple and studious life he learned to love upon the Illinois farm—the story of the life of United States Senator-elect W. B. Pine of Okmulgee, is the ever-thrilling romance of the achievement possible under the American system of living. Born in a cottage on a farm near Bluffs, Ill., in Scott county, 40 miles west of Springfield on December 30, 1877—Mr. Pine still lives in a cottage not much more commodious or convenient than the one in which he was born. He enjoys the simpler things of life, as does his wife, who was his boyhood sweetheart when Mr. Pine was working on the farms and attending the high schools at Bluff and Naples in Illinois. Mr. and Mrs. Pine have one child, a son W. B., Jr., ten years of age.

There is nothing eccentric or unusual about Mr. Pine. Because of his manner of living he is not a freak millionaire. He is clean cut, well-dressed, a keen thinker and student of all matters affecting American life and particularly industry and agriculture, a good talker and a pleasing and congenial man at all times. He is greatly interested in the upbuilding of Oklahoma and thinks the state has a great future. In civic and community work he has always taken a leading part and expects to continue this work in the future. He is a member of the Methodist Episcopal church, south.

That, in brief, is a word picture of the man who is to represent Oklahoma in the senate of the United States for the next six years. He is the man who beat Jack Walton, Democrat, and for years a power in Democratic Oklahoma. "I am pledged to Washington with an open mind and expect to spend considerable time learning the legislative game as it is played in the national capital," Mr. Pine said. "I have no pet theories of government, no bills to introduce and no axes to grind. The upbuilding of the state of Oklahoma is the aim and desire of my heart today. I fully realize that I have a great deal to learn of legislative matters, and work and study, just as I have always done, will be my program in Washington."

"I like the simple life, the simpler foods and the simpler pleasures and relaxations. They seem to me to bring more calmness of mind and peace and happiness and they give me more time to read and to study the big things that are going on about me. I have made it a practice to study right down to the bottom of subjects in which I have had work to do."

Started With $1,345

The romance of finance and industry are written into the life of the senator-elect. He came to Okmulgee on Feb. 3, 1909 with $1,345 in his pockets and from this has built up the business and fortune he has today. Estimates of his wealth run from $2,000,000 to $4,000,000 with the smaller figures probably nearer the mark. He owns crude oil production approximating 1,000 barrels per day and rather extensive natural gas properties. He is a director of the Central National bank and a stockholder in nearly every industry in town. Mr. Pine is president of the chamber of commerce of Okmulgee and vice-president of the Okmulgee District Oil and Gas association, an association of oil men from five counties in the vicinity of Okmulgee.

Mr. Pine ascribes much of his success as an oil producer to geology. He is a great student of that subject. All of his oil operations are carried on on geological advice. He was one of the first of the independent operators in Oklahoma to make use of geology in searching for oil. He first saw oil produced in and around Chanute, Kan., and it was there that he got the inspiration to enter the business which has brought him such success.

After growing to manhood on the farms, he was sent to Wichita, Kan., as a binder expert with the D. M. Osborne Co. of Auburn, N. Y. He graduated from the high school at Naples, Mo., in 1896 and his high school training is his only schooling except through experience and self-training.

Mr. Pine was married June 18, 1912, to Miss Laura M. Hamilton, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James M. Hamilton of Naples, Mo. The senator-elect's mother, Mrs. William G. Pine is now a resident of Bluffs, Mo. Her husband died seven years ago.

German Children as Truck

Gardeners Prove Successful

(By the Associated Press)
BERLIN.—A unique harvest festival recently took place in the industrial suburb of Berlin, Neukölln. The International Cash Register Company, a subsidiary of the National Cash Register Company of Dayton, Ohio, has copied the American plan of turning over vacant land to children of its employees for gardening purposes. The festival marked the end of this year's experiment.

Thirty-five boys and 20 girls had cultivated strips of land each 50 by 10 feet. The average yield per child was 100 heads of lettuce, 80 pounds tomatoes, 60 pounds cucumbers, 60 pounds cabbage, 30 pounds red beets, 25 pounds string beans, 25 pounds spinach, 25 bunches celery, 25 pounds carrots, 12 pounds peas, 10 pounds each of onions, radishes and kohlrabi.

MISS MASON'S LATEST BY BROADWAY AUTHOR

William J. Hurlburt, the well known playwright, to whose credit are placed a number of Broadway successes, wrote "That French Lady," the Shirley Mason starring picture, booked at the American today. It was produced as a stage play under the title, "The Strange Woman." Edmund Mortimer directed the photoplay version. Elsie Ferguson starred in the play.

LA ROQUE, VERA REYNOLDS, STARS IN "FEET OF CLAY"

Cecil B. DeMille's newest production for Paramount, "Feet of Clay," adapted from the popular magazine serial by Margaretta Tuttle, featuring Rod La Roque, Vera Reynolds, Victor Varconi, Ricardo Cortez, Julia Faye, Theodore Kosloff and Robert Edison, and which opens today at the McSwain theatre, is an absorbing timely story, opening with a yachting party and beach carnival at Catalina, punctuated by a daring race by twenty beautiful girls on surfboards behind fast speedboats, and brought to a period by the maiming of Rod La Roque, fighting with a shark to protect Vera Reynolds.

NOW! Let's!!

Madill Enterprise—Now that the election is over, now that the dust of the great battle of the ballots has begun to settle, now that the voice of the voters has decided who shall serve our people, now that the defeated candidates have folded their tents and left the scene of intense action, now that the spellbinders have ceased to orate, to howl and holler, now that the bitterest campaign in Oklahoma's political history is ended, now that every man and every woman has voted his or her own personal opinion, now that the internecine strife that has been so bitterly waged for the past number of months, has come to a pause.

Let's decide that the pause is more than an armistice, so far as Madill and Marshall county may be concerned. Let's all remember that we are neighbors and old time friends. Let's all seek to see ourselves as others see us. Let's all—every mother's son of us—get busy and go to work for the common good. Let's get busy doing things to advance the best interest of Madill and of Marshall county. Let's bear in mind that the business interests and the farming interests, and all the other interests that go to make up a successful community, need a bit of our attention. Let's give the road over to the man who drives the car of progress and let the political road hog stop for another two years' period at the filling station. Let's put our shoulders to the wheel and work for a common cause—the cause of common good. Let's remember that we are brothers, all alike under the skin. Let's forget all clods, clans, dogmas and disruption intolerance and pull as one man, each man doing his bit, each man loving his fellow man, each man living just as near right as possible.

Let's do this. LET'S!!

Love Peacemaker Has 20 Don'ts For Matrimonially Inclined

Girls:
Don't marry a man who doesn't read the sport section of the newspapers.

Young Men:
Don't marry a girl who doesn't want you to meet her parents.

(By Central Press)
SAN FRANCISCO.—Look before you leap!

That sums up the advice of Judge Thomas F. Graham, famed love peacemaker, to would-be brides and bridegrooms.

He believes that if this policy were followed generally marital smash-ups would be greatly reduced.

Judge Graham, known as "the great pacifier" because of his success in bringing estranged couples together, has just issued a new list of don'ts for those who expect to marry.

His advice is founded on experience gained in 20 years of service as a judge in divorce cases.

Says Judge Graham:

Young Women: Don't—

Marry a man who does not read the sport section of the newspapers.

Young fellows who profess no interest in sports are not apt to be interested in anything but themselves.

Marry a man who plays cards for money. Love for games of chance usually supplants all other loves.

Marry a man who says he has no bad habits. He is pretty sure to have a vice much worse than smoking or even drinking. If he's of the "holier than thou" variety he soon will become a pest.

Marry a man your parents object to, unless your parents are most unreasonable. It is court history that 65 percent of all elopements end in the divorce courts.

Marry a man who says he does not care for children.

Marry a man because he is a good dancer. Perhaps that is the only thing he can do well. Men who have intelligent feelings seldom have anything in their heads.

Marry a man who detests dogs. Something is wrong with that sort of man.

Marry a man who drinks on the sly. If he isn't fair and square on that subject, he'll deceive you on other accounts.

Marry a man who speaks slightly of your parents or of old people. He'll neglect you when you begin to get wrinkled and gray.

Marry until you are old enough to know what you are doing.

Young Men: Don't—

Marry a girl who has lily white hands when her mother's are calloused and roughened by hard work.

Marry a girl who wants you to take her to the show every night and is never content to let you "sit up" with her in her own home. She's not the type that will make a home for you.

Marry a girl who keeps her room or the parlor littered with signed photographs of former or present beaux.

Marry a girl who is ashamed of her parents and does not want you to meet them.

Marry a girl whose only thought is clothes. If that is the calibre of her brain she'll never be a real wife or mother.

Marry a girl who insists that you take her to places of amusement that are beyond your means.

Marry a girl who is immodest in her dress. No man wants a blush because of his wife's appearance. And never marry a girl who is slovenly and untidy. That, in a short time, will kill even the most ardent love.

Marry a girl several years older than yourself or many years younger.

Never marry a girl who is not fond of children.

SUMMERS CHAPEL

PARIS, Nov. 8. —The claim that baseball was invented in France has been revived coincidentally with the European tour of the New York Giants and Chicago White Sox.

In England, they are satisfied with saying that baseball is nothing but glorified "rounders" and that Henry Chadwick, father of the game was born in the United Kingdom. Prantz Riechel, former secretary of the French Olympic committee, however, is authority for the statement that "baseball was played in France fifty years ago."

This was long before the American national pastime was organized, M. Riechel continues:

"It was played with nine men to a side and with four bases just like modern baseball, but it was known as 'la grande theque'."

Dick Kinsella, of Springfield, Ill., advance agent for the Giants and White Sox, when confronted with this "news" at headquarters of the newly organized French baseball federation, said:

"It may have been 'la grande theque' in those days, but if it doesn't get larger crowds here than the Sox and Giants played to in Ireland it will require 'ze grande cheque' to foot the bill when the boys return to the states."

The two teams drew a crowd of about twenty spectators at their recent appearance in Dublin.

"It's a good thing the teams aren't scheduled to play in China," Kinsella volunteered. Some bright Chinese sporting writer would be sure to discover that baseball was played there in the days of Confucius.

The demand for tourists accommodations on excursions to the battlefields has fallen off noticeably of late, but reservations for Nice, Monte Carlo and other points along the Riviera are at a premium. Houses of 100 francs being frequently given for sleeping car tickets to southern France. This winter the rush promises to be even greater than last year's record invasion.

Those interested in visiting the battlefields constitute a mere drop in the bucket of the tourist traffic reported by travel bureaus here. Most of those going north merely view the former battle front from train windows on one day trips to Rheims to have a look at the famous cathedral.

The French government has decided to double the price of admission to the state picture gallery museums, charging two francs in the future. This increase, the government hopes, will wipe out or at least materially reduce the deficit in the ministry of public instruction and fine arts.

When it was first decided to charge admissions to the galleries fears were expressed that visitors would be discouraged by such a step. These fears have proved unfounded, however, and the Louvre alone took in 400,000 francs at the turnstiles this year.

Baron Henri de Rothschild is building a theatre in Paris, thus enabling the columnists and humorists to poke fun at him for making sure of having his plays produced.

The baron is a man of parts. He is a duly qualified doctor of medicine and acts as head physician to a hospital which he established. He has written articles, essays and short stories under the nom de plume of "Charles des Fontaines."

"Des Fontaines" is the name of his county house near Chantilly and near it are the stables sheltering his string of racers, entries from which have won the Chantilly derby and the grand prix de Paris for him several times.

The baron's greatest ambition is to gain success as a playwright and he has made several attempts, failing however to score a real hit thus far. He signs his plays "Andre Pascal."

LONDON. — Stanley Baldwin's pipes and household furniture are about to be moved for the fourth time within two years.

When the Lloyd-George coalition crumbled and the Bonar Law government was formed the Baldwins gave up their home in Eaton square and moved into Number 11 Downing street, the official residence of the chancellor of the exchequer.

Upon Bonar Law's retirement all the household belongings of the Baldwin family were taken out of Downing street and moved into the house next door—the celebrated No. 10, where Mr. Baldwin established himself as premier.

He was there only a few months when the country turned down his protective tariff pleas and he had to go house hunting again while the MacDonald family made themselves at home in No. 10.

Now the labor leader is going back to his simple brick house in rown "Appy Ampstead" indistinguishable from any other house in the row where he lives and Mr. Baldwin's family is making ready to re-enter No. 10 Downing street.

Meanwhile the retired labor party ministers, whose homes have been guarded day and night for the last nine months, with messengers rushing in and out with dispatch boxes at all hours, will become calm again and the "bobbies" on their beats won't give them any more attention than is received by the dwelling place of any ordinary taxpayer.

Making two world wide speeches at the Lord Mayor's banquet at the Guild Hall in two consecutive years as premier of two separate conservative administrations is the experience Mr. Baldwin will have gone through next Monday. It is one

Jones Tries Many Shifts to Bolster Yale Team

By Central Press
NEW HAVEN, Conn. — Tad Jones is by no means discouraged with the early showing of the Yale team which was blasted into tiny titbits by graduation last summer. He is still convinced, however, that he can find a better combination than the ones he has tried to date. So it is a wise player who knows his own position as the Bulldog team is prepped for its next game.

Jones is trying these different cross-word solutions around four men—the nucleus of the 1924 team. They are Captain Lovejoy, Dick Luman, Duckie Pond and Dan Allen.

At the center of what bids fair to be a powerful line is Lovejoy, rated second only to Garbisch, of Army. The ends, Luman and Bingham have plenty of weight, speed and experience and should be capable of filling their positions against all comers. A real struggle is on for tackle appointments among which no premier has had in forty years, the last being Lord Salisbury.

The outgoing cabinet was in power less than a year and did not give Ransay MacDonald the opportunity, as premier, of following the time-honored custom of giving the country and the world at large a review of foreign and domestic affairs on Lord Mayor's day.

Mr. Baldwin, on this occasion, being in office such a short time, is expected to avoid controversial subjects, as the banquet is usually attended by the ambassadors of foreign countries, but he will probably give a short general survey of the home situation, touch lightly on foreign affairs and dwell mostly on imperial matters.

The autumn flow of books has already set in and the reviewers are hard put to get thru the continuous outpouring of the literary men and women. So much romance, history, science and economic literature has been written recently that the publishers declare their output this year will probably establish a record and for the first time since the war exceed the total of 12,379 volumes published in 1913.

After that year the output shrank rapidly until 1918 when the figure, including new editions of previously published works was only 7,716 but a gradual recovery has since been experienced and last year's total reached 12,275. Fresh publications this year are expected to touch 9,500 and with new editions, the grand total will top the 1913 record.

Within two days last week 74 new publications were placed on the market and the book sellers report that they have never experienced such a flood of writing as the present. The home demand seems to run mostly for fiction and romance, but the orders from abroad deal more with science and economics.

BERLIN—The days of the glorification of the young girl to the exclusion of the matured woman, are over. In the opinion of a number of Berlin artists, modistes and millers, to whom was put the question recently, "At what age are women most beautiful?"

Almost unanimously, the answer was that the normal woman usually was most beautiful between the ages of 20 and 35. The "Flapper" type received few votes, the judges expressing the opinion that their faces were for the most part too empty of expression.

While the average woman's figure may be developed fully by the time she is 22 years old, most of the artists to whom the question was submitted, insisted that a woman of that age had not the harmony of body and mind which gave the face the character and balance of features necessary to the creation of commanding personality.

Americans of modest means can travel inexpensively in Germany if they are willing to patronize the smaller hotels and use third and fourth class railway accommodations. It has been shown by the experience of two members of the faculty of Chiezo university who recently completed a nine days' swing through Germany at a total cost daily of about $4.25 each.

The two Chicagoans—one an associate professor of history and the other an instructor of history—started from Berlin and returned to the capital after having visited Leipzig, Nuremberg, Hamburg, Wuerzburg, Rothenburg, Trenchlingen, Augsburg, Munich, Ulm, Crailsheim, the Thuringian forest, Erfurt and Magedburg.

Here is a tabulation of the expenses each in marks: Railway fares 64.85; hotel rooms $3.40; meals 48.60; smoking 4.85; admission

Butterworth, Joss and Richards. All three are strong and heavy, with football instinct, but they are not sufficiently experienced as yet to fill the shoes of Century Milstead or Ted Blair satisfactorily. Eckhart at left guard is a veteran of last year's conquests, while Sturhahn and Wortham, alternating on the other side of Captain Lovejoy, earned fame with the champion freshman team last year.

But in the backfield Coach Jones faces a greater problem. Duckie Pond, who made the lone touchdown on rain-soaked Soldiers' Field at Harvard last November, can be relied on for dazzling off-tackle runs from the halfback position. He and Dan Allen, a dependable fullback and kicker are the only backs certain to hold their positions.

Struggling for the quarterback assignment are Eddie Bench, last year substitute for Mallory at fullback; Bunnell, pilot of the sensational 1927 freshman team; Jerry Wadsworth, son of the U. S. senator; Wienicke and Riley. None of these have yet shown unusual ability, though Bench and Bunnell appear the leading candidates. Eddie Cottle, a triple-threat back who did excellent work last year seems most likely to complete the backfield in the big games, though he is being hard pushed by Jack Failing, who showed up well against North Carolina and Georgia.

With Army, Maryland, Princeton and Harvard to be met on successive Saturdays, the bulldog team is still far from mid-season form. Yale's attention is centered on Princeton and Harvard so the team can not be judged by early performances; thus far the games have been used merely as scrimmages to try out various playing combinations. The scientific football which swept away Army, Princeton and Harvard last year is still in storage if it has been developed.

Melancholy Reigns in Kazan of Tartary, Once City of Wealth

KAZAN, Tartar Republic, Russia. —Nowhere in Russia is the blighting influence of the Russian revolution seen more strikingly than in Kazan, capital of the newly-created Tartar Republic and once one of the most prosperous cities in Europe. If death itself had overtaken the city, the ravages could not have been greater. The great factories are idle, the stores empty and abandoned, the homes are crumbling to ruins, and the people seem stricken with hopelessness and despair.

The granite and bronze monuments to Alexander the Second and other historical figures of Russia have been wrecked and replaced with harsh Communist figures of workmen. From all flagpoles the red flag of the revolution flies. To many it is only the grim reminder of the spiritual death of the city, which has been in Russia's possession since the days of Ivan the Terrible.

The commercial life of Kazan is at a standstill. Half the population, finding conditions intolerable have left for neighboring cities which promise a better existence. The road ways are so little used that grass and weeds are growing in the crevices between the paving-stones. Many of the stores are either shattered or windowless. The quantities of leather, soap, candles, wheat and other staples which the city annually exported are but memories of its past greatness. It now has nothing to export. It barely produces enough for its own maintenance.

The churches present an especially melancholy sight. They are in full process of decay. The clergy are too poor to repair them. Many of them have closed their doors. Others have been converted into Communist clubs or barracks. The correspondent visited the largest of the churches, the famous Convent of the Virgin Mother, where mass was in progress. The priests and nuns were more numerous than the congregations, which numbered exactly six persons.

The party given at Mr. and Mrs. Glen Peck's Friday night was enjoyed by all.

Mrs. Lora Taylor of Ada visited her brother John Taylor Sunday.

Every one had a nice time at the party at Ronald Eddings Friday night.

J. S. Flannery is visiting at Chickasha.

There will be a pie supper here Friday night, November 7. Everyone is invited.

Miss Mary Flannery attended Sunday school at Center Sunday.

Miss Norene Moore and O'Dessa Johns of Summers Chapel visited Opel White Saturday night and Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Parker of Maysville are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Luther Parker.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Henry spent Sunday night with Mr. and Mrs. John Grindstaff.

Cecil Abson was visiting Harlie and Yanda Saylor Saturday night and Sunday.

Jim Copeland and mother are leaving this community for Wilburton. We wish them success in their new location.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Eddings and Miss Neomah were called to the home of Jake Eddings at Parish Chapel Sunday on account of the sudden death of their mother Mrs. Mary Eddings.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Yancey who have been rescuing in Dumond, Texas, the past year arrived back home Sunday. They will remain here for a few weeks before seeking a new location.

Mrs. Luther Pruett, a teacher from Paden, Okla., is visiting in the home of C. M. Melroy.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Morrison of Marlow made a flying week-end trip to Pontotoc county and spend Sunday in Center at the home of Everett Ricketts.

Fred Mills and family left Monday for Texas to make their future home.

C. M. Floyd has gone to Texas to look out a location. We regret to lose so many of our good citizens but wish them prosperity in their new location.

Mr. and Mrs. Olen Rycroft, Jim Rycroft and J. Flannery are in western Oklahoma this week looking out locations for future homes.

The associate professor, in describing the trip, said he and his companion had encountered more interesting people in the third and fourth class cars of the trains than they usually had in expensive sections and that they had had the opportunity to hear the opinions of the rank and file of the Germans in the fourth class compartments, they had even met members of the nobility. Despite the low costs, the educators said they had always had clean and comfortable rooms and good food.

Fraulein Claire Nore Stinnes, eldest daughter of the late Hugo Stinnes, the industrial magnate recently purchased a number of thoroughbred mares and she is now establishing a breeding farm to which she will give much of her time.

Fraulein Stinnes who is now 23 years old, was the almost constant companion of her father, frequently acting as his chauffeur on long motor trips through Germany. Since his death she has been casting about to find some branch of her father's business which she might find congenial employment.

An attempt to work in the production section of the Stinnes moving picture interests ended badly, besides failing to appeal to her. While assisting one day in direction of a film in which a monkey was an actor, the animal bit her finger. The wound was cauterized and there were no bad effects from it, but Fraulein Stinnes decided the cinema was not her field.

South Dakota Mayor Gives Farmers Advice on Prosperity

SUMMIT, S. D., November, 7.—An unusual "proclamation" was issued to residents of this village by Olaf Melby, mayor and pioneer merchant. This section of South Dakota has harvested one of the biggest crops in its history and Mr. Melby, in a message directed to the farmers of his community, urged them to take advantage of bounteous crops and high grain prices to recover and insure their stability.

"Now that we are harvesting the greatest crop in twenty years, with prices above normal, I wish to speak to you as man to man," Mayor Melby wrote. "First, pay your obligations. For debts are like a log jam. Every dollar paid loosens this amount, as it pays the merchant, the jobber, the manufacturer, the banker.

"Do not go into debt. Interest will kill the best individual in the community. Do not work your life out for the other fellow. Renters who pay up their obligations this fall ought to buy a farm. But do not pay a thousand dollars down on an $8,000 obligation. If you cannot pay one-third down, buy forty acres instead. Land will never be so cheap again in our time. Buy a home, a farm, a means of livelihood for yourself and your family.

"Do not expect to get rich quick. You cannot make any money unless you invest it in your own business. Do not give up the old cow, or the hogs and sheep. They require a little care that means work, but they never will fail.

"Your home people are interested in you and your welfare. Do not let strangers tell you what to do. Better ask your neighbor, banker or merchant. Outsiders only want your money. Stick to your community, and you and your family will wear diamonds."

"Feet of Clay" is typically DeMille, and you know what that means—luxury, gorgeousness, linked with a logical, dramatic, pictorial story.

A picture with a "smash" climax, the like of which has never been seen before—a scene you'll talk about just as everyone did of the opening of the Red Sea in "The Ten Commandments."
